

Five Hours From Warsaw

Five Hours From Warsaw A Summary by William F. Amato Joe Saeli is summoned by his boss, Ralph Bianco, boss of the Chicago Outfit. He is assigned to a mission: to hunt down and assassinate a mortal enemy of Bianco's underworld empire. Normally, this would be of little concern for the Outfit's most feared assassin; murder is his stock in trade. But his quarry, Richard Kowalczyk, has fled to his place of birth; a small village in the mountains of Southern Poland with three hundred thousand dollars of Bianco's money. The year is 1986. Poland is still in the grips of Communism. Joe reluctantly follows his orders. Little does he know that fate has already taken charge. It is guiding him toward his destiny. It is about to drastically and forever transform his life. His boss has arranged for everything; passports, travel expenses, and through the Polish Underground, a Contact Man who will act as his guide and furnish him with the tools necessary to carry out his mission.

But, soon after arriving in Poland, Joe discovers that things are not going according to plan. His Contact Man has been arrested by the Polish authorities, leaving him blind and helpless in a strange, unfamiliar land. In the Hotel Polonia dining room, Joe meets a beautiful Polish girl, her name is Bogusia. Joe makes a deal with Bogusia to act as his guide. He now has eyes, but the question of weapons is still unanswered. In a rented Fiat, he and Bogusia make the five hour journey from Warsaw to Bystrzyca, Kowalczyk's home town. Kowalczyk is tipped off that a stranger has been asking about him. He decides to take the American out before he comes after him. He stalks Joe, but without the benefit of a traditional weapon, Joe is able to defend himself and eliminate Kowalczyk with the help of a Kosa, a cycle-like farm tool. With his mission only half complete, Joe is ordered to abort his search for the money and return to Chicago. Bogusia, who has fallen hopelessly in love with Joe, is broken hearted. Joe, desperately in love with Bogusia, promises to come back for her. Realizing that if she can find the money, Joe will surely come back, Bogusia begins her quest. She contacts an old woman, living on a farm, on the other side of town. Her name is Kowalczyk. Bogusia visits the old woman. She passes herself off as her sons girlfriend. The old woman, unaware that her son is dead invites Bogusia to stay the night. Bogusia searches Kowalczyks bedroom. She finds the money stashed in a piece of furniture. She calls Joe to give him the good news. Joe makes the return trip. He tells Bogusia of his plan to smuggle her into The United States. A few weeks later Joe meets Bogusia in Mexico City. From there they fly to Matamoros. Joe turns Bogusia over to his local contacts who take her by boat across the Rio Grande. After successfully hurdling a few harrowing obstacles, Joe finally finds Bogusia waiting on the beach on the American side of the Rio Grande. Joe surprises Bogusia with a stopover in Las Vegas. He formally proposes. Bogusia tearfully accepts. Joe had served Ralph Bianco loyally for over thirty years. Not until Ralph ordered him to travel half way around the world on a mission of death, did he feel any reluctance to follow his orders. But he didnt know that hed find love in a tiny mountain village, only Five Hours From Warsaw.
