

A Tapestry of Dreams

The year is 1850, and Susannah Charlesworth loves the estate and open air life of the North Lincolnshire Wolds. She stands to become a very rich woman too - inheriting the estate, as well as her fathers and uncles wealth, one day. But then she meets the dashing Daniel Bullen and Susannahs life is about to change forever. As the eldest son, Daniel will take over his fathers mill. He sees it as providing for a lifestyle he wants to pursue, but in order to avoid jeopardising the fortune that awaits him, Daniel must be careful how he conducts himself ... and a marriage to Susannah will ensure that he becomes a very rich man indeed. Whilst their marriage, and the children Susannah bears, ensures that their union is a happy one at first, Susannah soon begins to realise that there is more to Daniel Bullen than she thought - and that she hasnt married the man of her dreams. When Susannahs father dies, Daniel learns that the huge wealth that he thought he would amass has gone to Susannahs uncle. The fragile bonds between them are broken. To find inner peace and save the family business, Susannah realises that she and her children must leave Daniels cruel clutches... But can Susannah ever find happiness in this tapestry of dreams ... ?
