

A O - AFTER OBAMA

The new president of the USA inherits an unholy mess from the Obama administration. The national debt is eighteen trillion dollars and rising. However, the new governments efforts to reduce public spending come to nothing, and in desperation the president adopts a plan drawn up by his jingoistic chief of staff Oliver Mandelson. A keen student of history, Mandelson noted that America had prospered from every war she had fought. Even the disastrous Vietnam war had its merits as the draft lowered the unemployment levels, as did the munitions factories that sprang up from coast to coast. It was time to start a new war, but it would have to be a big war, unlike piddling adventures such as Iraq, Afghanistan and Libya. The target is Iran, and once that country has been overrun and conquered the war is to be expanded to the oil-rich countries of the Caucasus, thus solving at a stroke Americas chronic shortage of the black gold that has shot up to 200 dollars a barrel. The opening assault on Iran goes well, but out of the smoking ruins of the capital, Teheran, a terrible nemesis is unleashed that has the mighty invasion forces fighting desperately for their very existence. And once the nemesis has destroyed the invaders it turns its attention to the continental USA, to ensure that never again would America be able to wage war against a legitimate member of the United Nations.
