

The Birdwatcher & the Terrorists (The Bird Watcher Book 1)

If you like action-adventure mixed with a love story, you need to read The Birdwatcher & the Terrorists. The author spent 13 years researching and writing this book, which included one year living in Colombia, three years in Portugal, two years in Brazil and several months in Mexico. Adanac citizen Fred Miller is a teacher and a bird watcher. After his family is killed in a car accident, he accepts a job teaching in La Mesa, Andino, in South America. Andino army officials seek him out because of his experience in the national guard and as a bird watcher. They need someone who can walk inconspicuously in the bush and take pictures of the terrorist leaders of the GADA (Guerrillas Armadas de Andino) or the Armed Guerrillas of Andino. Joined by Sunny Tripp, a fellow member of the La Mesa Bird Watchers Club and his contact with army officials, Fred embarks on this dangerous mission. He is successful, but his identity is discovered by the GADA leaders. During this stress and excitement, Fred and Sunny become more than friends. A GADA leader follows them back to Adanac, enters their home in the dark and shoots Sunny as she and Fred jump out of bed. After she is rushed to the hospital, Fred returns to Andino, buys a shotgun and knife, and returns to the area in the bush where he first saw the GADA leader. In addition to fighting the GADA, Fred discovers the embarkation point from which the La Mesa Cartel is shipping cocaine. Fred is able to assist the police in their pursuit of the Cartel leaders. Fred and Sunny finally get a vacation and go to Europe where they leave their baby with Sunnys parents while they go on to South Eastern Europe for a vacation. However, Freds sharp eyes for trouble observe cocaine being transferred from a fishing boat to a maid among the many maids who greet the boats daily to buy fish. The author has spent a great deal of time in Southeastern Europe and has observed the fishermen as they come in from a nights fishing. It is this process that has inspired the author as he continues the story. This is an area of beautiful beaches and resorts where citizens from many nations vacation. You will have a difficult time putting this story down to do other things. If you like excitement, adventure, a love story, etc. all mixed together, you will enjoy this story over and over.
