

Mystery in the Mansion (Libby the Psychic Dog Book 2)

Libby the Psychic Dog is back with a whole new adventure. When her owner suffers a mild stroke, Libby goes to live in a mansion by the sea until her Mama gets better. When she arrives at the mansion and sees its Georgian facade, she is instantly reminded of her past life as Lord Percival Plep, a titled Englishman who died during WWI. Her nostalgia increases when she meets the cook, Mrs. Beebee, another English transplant, and Binney, an elderly woman who is well over ninety. But its Binneys companion, an apricot standard Poodle named Gigi, who piques Libbys curiosity when she finds out that Gigi is in fact Clair Michel, a Canadian nurse who died during WWII. The two dogs bond, and when Libby notices that something is off about the master of the house, Axton Woodmore, and his gardener, Flitter, the dogs begin an investigation that leads to some startling revelations about how Axton made his money and what he is willing to do to keep it. This is the second book in the Libby the Psychic Dog series. The first is My First Christmas and it tells the story of how Libby came to be with her dearly loved owner, Mama. These books are intended for adults but are suitable for all ages.
