

By Motor to the Golden Gate

Journalist Emily Post left New York in 1915 in an on the road experiment to see if it was possible to drive in comfort across the country to San Francisco by automobile. This is Emily Posts only travel book, and was published several years before she was famous for her book on etiquette. This book describes with humor her travels with her cousin Alice and her Harvard undergraduate son as they become the tourists from Niagara Falls to cave dwellings near Santa Fe. A first-hand account of elite automotive travel, it also shows the history of the southwest, especially in the myths that made towns such as Santa Fe authentic tourist destinations, and provides contemporary comments on class and ethnicity. Chapters include: It Cant Be Done! - Albany, First Stop - A Breakdown - Luggage and other Luxuries - Did anybody say chicken? - Mud - Muddier - A Few Ways of the West and much more. Originally published 1916. Illustrated.
