As money and wealth wills just too much, it is probable it can will ones ability to recognize his own home. The essence was to woo, with a true heart but it turned to drawn Richard Grey in licentious habits. He could nonetheless, break the strong desires, a spell Gabriella Combs, the belle of Oswald street, his dream nights and everything if there was anything that mattered at all. His thoughts drifting from home and home, his place of birth, a history of his lovely mother Bianca, his refugee father, Marc Henry Grey, concealed for over forty-three years, with another woman, and the futile bond had sprang Gabriella, who was not willing to accept Henry as her father. Richards worth would pull the attention of any woman he entertains to court but the endless fights with Gabriella wouldnt spare him the chance to hang out for no reason. He blames his past bitterly and he hates how he enjoys all his wealth with his mother at large. It was time to face the facts and to face Henry. He would, at Gabriellas discretion and even as he seemed to have lost it all, the essence of what his true heart led him had made him a monstrous billionaire without fulfillment. What he Rules, is a most compelling page turner that will take you in an adventure of formidable discoveries on love, power, wealth and romance that seemed conning and yet sweet.
