

Five Hundred Dollars

Slowly through the village street walked an elderly man, with bronzed features and thin gray hair, supporting his somewhat uncertain steps by a stout cane. He was apparently tired, for, seeing a slight natural elevation under a branching elm tree, he sat down, and looked thoughtfully about him. Well, he said, Lakeville hasnt changed much since I left it, twenty years since. Has there been any change among those who are near to me? I dont know, but I shall soon find out. Shall I receive a welcome or not? There ought to be two families to greet me, but Here a boy appeared on the scene, a boy of fifteen, with a sturdy figure and a pleasant face, whose coarse suit indicated narrow means, if not poverty. Seeing the old man, with instinctive politeness he doffed his hat and with a pleasant smile bade him good-morning.
