My dearest child, I have this moment received a most unexpected and most melancholy letter from you, with an account of your fever and new operation. I did not in the least dream of your having any more trouble from that disorder! are you never to be delivered from it? Your letter has shocked me extremely; and then I am terrified at the Spaniards passing so near Florence. If they should, I For removing Sir Robert Walpole.--Walpole! Sir John St. Aubyn, of Clowance, in Cornwall died 1744, third baronet of that family.--Dover. 3 March 9. Motion in the House of Commons for a secret committee to inquire into our affairs for twenty or twenty-one years. The Speaker said Ayes had it: one that was for trying it divided the House. The Noes carried it by 244 against 242. Mr. Sandys at Worcester, Mr. Pulteney at home--his daughter dying. The Prince at Kew. Several of his servants, and several Scotch members, not at the House; nor Lord Winchilseas brothers. Gibbon, Rushout, Barnard voted for the committee, but did not speak. It is said that the Prince had before this written to Lord Carteret, to desire that Lord Archibald Hamilton and Lord Baltimore might be lords of the Admiralty, and that this had been promised.--Seeker MS.--Wright. 4 Charles, commonly called the proud Duke of Somerset. An absurd, vain, pompous man, who appears to have been also most harsh and unfeeling to those who depended on him.--Dover. See note 4, p. 134.--Cunningham. as I fear they will, stay here, how inconvenient and terrible it would be for you, now you are ill! You tell me, and my good Mr. Chute tells me, that you are out of all danger, and much better;...
