

Polonio 210 (Spanish Edition)

Pia Grazdani ve su sueño hecho realidad cuando se incorpora a un equipo de investigación de nuevas células madre que podrían sustituir incluso a los órganos originales del cuerpo. Pia Grazdani es una brillante estudiante de medicina que colabora con el programa de investigación del doctor Tobias Rothman en la Universidad de Columbia. El trabajo de este genetista molecular está a punto de revolucionar muchos aspectos de la medicina actual: ha logrado crear órganos de recambio para pacientes con enfermedades crónicas. Para Pia, la participación en este proyecto supone ver cumplido su sueño de formar parte de un equipo cuyo trabajo ayudara a millones de personas. Sin embargo, este gran adelanto científico también va a significar una revolución en la industria de la sanidad y de los seguros médicos, y una pérdida enorme de ingresos para estos últimos. Cuando un accidente mortal en el laboratorio propicie que toda la investigación se venga abajo, Pia decidirá investigar por su propia cuenta sobre lo ocurrido. Sus indagaciones la llevarán a descubrir las manipulaciones de información y los actos criminales cometidos por algunas empresas de seguros médicos. La crítica ha dicho...Cook caracteriza tan bien a los personajes que el lector comparte todas sus preocupaciones personales y profesionales. USA Today Una mezcla fascinante de suspense, acción y educación sobre importantes temas médicos. Publishers Weekly El maestro del thriller médico. The New York Times
