

Before First Light (Special Force Orca Book 21)

As part of the D Day counter-invasion measures the German Navy had formed a covert fleet of thirty six U-boats known as the Landwirte Group, crewed by the best Germany had to offer, seasoned U Boat men, veterans of the Battle of the Atlantic their task was to attack Allied shipping supporting the invasion. To disrupt the vital supplies that would mean success or failure, life or death for thousands of men. Who should lead the fight against such a mighty force, who could be called upon to stop this submerged menace? Who could possibly cope when the Nazis had the invasion fleets recognition call sign, only one man; Commodore Alexander Barr. On the morning of 6 June 1944, these 36 Type VIICs U Boats responded from their bomb proof concrete bunkers in North West France. But what if this was only a ruse, what if the Nazis had a war-changing ace up their sleeves, what if they actually wanted hundreds of thousands of Allied soldiers ashore in France. Had Special Force Orca stumbled on their secret by accident, what surprise did the huge ice cave in the frozen wastes of the Arctic contain? What or who was Thule and what deadly dangers did that evocative codename conceal?
