Felina stared at her gown lying on the bed. She designed it and Arabella had Mystique, a dressmaker to sew it. It was beautiful in its simplicity. The color was much like a pearl with a hint of pink. It flowed around her curves, ending just above her ankles, the top bared her shoulders and was trimmed with natural pearls. Scott told her to spare no expense in purchasing a dress but she knew exactly what she wanted. He had only seen and touched the material and loved it. She hugged herself thinking of being Scotts wife and living together. There was one cloud and that was Scotts father, would not attend the wedding. Scott was unmoved, but it touched Felinas heart though she knew his lack of acceptance changed nothing, it wasnt required. Arabella was as happy as she could remember being. After her husband died she was devoted to raising her child and the law but in the past months she was embroiled in a passionate relationship with Isaac and was truly enjoying mentoring teens. Teaching them the law and practical advice on staying on track and in school was an additional bonus. A few days earlier, Felina informed her that Juan was coming to the wedding. Of course he is, he is family. Arabella retorted. I just wanted you to know, you are embroiled with Isaac and Uncle Juan is bringing someone with him. Good for him, we will be one big happy family. Arabella cared for Juan, he would always be a man she loved but right now Isaac was her man. Scott sat at his desk staring into space. He was filled with nervous energy waiting to marry his love. He didnt want anything to occur to mess with that. His business was off the charts and his new person, Alfred was doing a wonderful job. Ramiko had given a tentative notice but was still working. He was going to have to discuss that with her and soon. When he married Felina he wanted all loose ends tied and cut. His life was moving in a completely new direction.
